CONVICTED AIRWAYS OFFICIAL TAKEN TO JAIL

Britten Begins Serving Sentence Voted by U. S. Senate

Washington, Feb. 15.—(AP)—L. H. Britten, vice president of Northwest Airways, entered jail today to serve his ten-day sentence for contempt of the Senate, imposed yesterday.

After leaving Britten at the jail Chesley Jurney, Senate Sergeant-at-Arms, quoted the prisoner as saying he didn't have enough money to perfect an appeal, that he was "broke," had been "fired" by his company, and "might as well go to jail."

What action William P. MacCracken, former Assistant Secretary of Commerce, who also was sentenced to ten days, planned to take was not made known.

Under $5,000 Bonds
Later, bail of $5,000 for MacCracken's release was fixed by Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue of the District of Columbia Supreme Court.

He said that granting of bail would be based on the stipulation that there be an agreement between MacCracken and the Senate Sergeant-at-Arms calling for MacCracken's surrender in the event that a court of last resort upholds the Justice in discharging a writ of habeas corpus.

Both United States Attorney Leslie Garnett and Frank J. Hogan, counsel for MacCracken, expressed satisfaction with this condition.

Hogan would not say whether he would appeal at once to the District of Columbia Court of Appeals.

The two men were sentenced to the District of Columbia jail on charges of treating too lightly a subpoenae of the Senate air mail investigating committee. The sentence was delayed for four days but both were ordered held.

Two Were Acquitted
Harris M. Hanshue and Gilbert L. Givvin, president and representative of Western Air Express, were voted not guilty and both today were free.

All four were placed on trial before the Senate bar on charges of removing air mail correspondence from MacCracken's law office.

Both the men voted guilty took the Senate's sentence lightly.

MacCracken, sitting in the well of the chamber, did not move when announcement came that he had been voted guilty 64 to 20.

Britten sat with folded arms, but gave a slight gulp and allowed his foot to twitch as the vote against him was made known.

Accompanied by Jurney the two were taken quickly to the same hotel in which Jurney and MacCracken already had spent two nights together.

Brown To Testify
Walter F. Brown, Postmaster General in the Hoover administration, asked the Senate air mail inquiry committee today to permit him to testify voluntarily at the earliest possible date and promised he would waive immunity from prosecution as a result of anything he had to say.

Senator Fess (R., Ohio) read the Brown request to the Senate and Chairman Black of the investigating committee promised he would give Brown an early hearing.

The request was contained in a letter to Fess and said:

"I urgently request to be heard at the earliest date convenient to the committee. I will appear voluntarily and without compulsion and anything I may say may be used against me in any court in the land."

Fess said he had a telephone message from Brown today insisting that he be allowed to testify.

Garage Burned at Teschendorff Home
World's Fair Bill Passed by Senate

The garage at the William Teschendorff home northwest of Dixon on Pennsylvania avenue was destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The flames badly scorched the house and the community fire truck was summoned. The firemen prevented the spread of the flames to the residence and the damage, which was estimated at about $400, was partially covered by insurance.

The community fire truck made another run at 6:45 last evening when it was called to the Charles Orsigen farm south of Dixon on the Pump Factory road. A stubble field was being burned over and the fire threatened the buildings, but was extinguished before any damage was done.

The Teschendorff family is most grateful to the neighbors for their assistance at the fire in their home.

Melvin A. Traylor, noted Chicago banker, passed away at his home at 11:08 o'clock last night after a 35-day fight against pneumonia, during which his repeated rallies from sinking spells amazed his physicians. A rare form of pneumonia, Friedlander bacillus, caused his death.

CHALLENGE OF POWER OF CHIEF EXECUTIVE ENDS

Death of Wm. Humphrey Terminates Court Action Today

Washington, Feb. 15.—(AP)—A court challenge to the right of President Roosevelt to remove a member of the Federal Trade Commission was ended today by the sudden death of William E. Humphrey.

The former Trade Commissioner, 71 years old, died as the result of a stroke at his home here. He had been in frail health for some time.

Humphrey had pending in Federal court here a suit contesting his removal from the Commission, charging that the President had acted contrary to law in taking away his post without charges of wrongdoing or malfeasance.

Roosevelt, in asking that he resign last summer, stated in letters brought out in court that he desired to name in Humphrey's place a man whose ideas were more closely in line with his own.

Humphrey declined three such requests, and finally was removed without a resignation. He went to court for salary he maintained was due him.

For years Humphrey was a Republican Representative of Washington in the House, serving from 1902 to 1917. Later he sought the Republican nomination for Senator from Washington, but was defeated.

Humphrey was born near Alamo, Ind. Graduating in law from Washburn College he practiced for a while in Indiana before moving to Seattle.

He was named to the Federal Trade Commission by President Coolidge while practicing law in Washington. He was reappointed for another six year term during the Hoover administration.

His widow and a sister, Miss Edna Humphrey of Crawfordsville, Ind., survive him.

BANKER'S HEART UNEQUAL TO ITS 35-DAYS STRAIN

Melvin A. Traylor, 55, Died in His Chicago Home Last Night

Chicago, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Death has closed the career of Melvin A. Traylor, banker who rose from a humble beginning in a Kentucky log cabin to become an international figure in banking and a national power in politics.

His heart weakened by a 35-day siege of pneumonia, the 55-year-old President of the First National bank—a $900,000,000 institution—died at 11:08 o'clock last night at his home.

Mrs. Traylor, who was the former Dorothy Arnold Yerby of Hillsboro, Texas, and the couple's two children, Melvin Alvah, Jr., and Nancy were with Mr. Traylor, who had been unconscious for several hours when death occurred.

Had Rare Disease
In Traylor's illness physicians were confronted by a rare form of the ailment complicated by the presence of the Friedlander bacillus, a micro-organism discovered in 1883 by a German scientist and which doctors said was the cause of pneumonia only in about one case in sixty.

Artificial respiration, an oxygen tent, a serum made from the blood of Mrs. Traylor, who had recovered from an ordinary attack of pneumonia, were used, but to no avail. The patient suffered seven relapses, but amazed his physicians each time, by rallying, so that they held out hope for his recovery almost to the last.

Was Hard Worker
A steady application to hard work, unassisted by outside help, brought fame to Melvin Traylor, and led to various achievements, including his organization of the Bank for International Settlements at Basel, Switzerland—a success

GEORGE WEYANT FUNERAL TO BE HELD TOMORROW

Service for Grand De-tour Man at Beth-el U. E. Church

The funeral of George Weyant, who passed away at 12:30 noon yesterday at his home in Grand Detour, will be held Friday at 2 o'clock at the Bethel Evangelical church, Rev. H. W. Lambert officiating, and interment in the Emmert cemetery.

George Weyant was born in Germany, July 12, 1854, and passed away at the age of 79 years, seven months and two days. The family came to America when he was about ten years of age and settled in Lee county near Ashton, and he has lived about 70 years in Lee and Oglesby counties.

In 1874 he was united in marriage to Susan V. Buzard. To this union were born four children, J. U. Weyant and Harry Weyant of Dixon, and Ezra R. and Edwin who died in infancy, the wife and mother following February 2, 1902. He later was united in marriage to Keran Dudley, who departed from this life in March of 1929. He leaves to mourn his loss, two sons, one sister, six grand children and five great grandchildren.

He was converted in and became a member of St. Paul's Lutheran church of Nachusa at about the age of 35, later transferring his membership to Bethel United Evangelical church of Dixon, of which he was a member at the time of his death. He loved to attend the services in the house of God, and was faithful so long as his physical strength would permit.

Not endowed with much of this world's goods, he leaves to his loved ones, as a heritage, the example of an honorable life, true to his Maker in all his ways. Surely his life and labors have not been in vain.

GREECE PERMITS INSULL TO STAY DURING ILLNESS

Will Not be Forced to Leave Until He is Improved

Athens, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Premier Tsaldaris announced today that Samuel Insull, Sr., former American utilities operator, will be permitted to remain in Greece until his health improves.

Insull, wanted in the United States to face charges growing out of the collapse of his enterprises, originally was ordered to leave Greece January 31.

He appealed, however, on the grounds of illness.

Previously the 74-year-old fugitive had been victorious in Greek courts twice against efforts of the United States government to obtain his extradition.

After one medical examination by physicians appointed by the government, it was announced Insull had been found able to travel—provided ample precautions were taken.

Later, however, the Premier expressed the belief it would be "murder" to deport him in his present physical condition.

Nevertheless, the case was left hanging fire until today.

Two bullets had been fired from a .38 calibre revolver clutched in one hand of the young man, who was at Pierce City, Mo. He had been shot in the mouth; his companion in the right temple.

Mrs. Julia Gould, at whose home Miss Dearlove lived, said the couple was engaged to be married.

Holy Roller ROLLED OUT
Holy Roller Earl James was the victim of a practical joke Tuesday evening about 6:15 as he was about to drive away from his place of business on Peoria avenue on his way home for supper, when a bomb exploded beneath the hood of the machine. Some one, evidently had placed a miniature smoke bomb underneath the hood and attached it to the spark plug, as a joke. The joke worked 100 per cent but Earl received his mirth until some time afterward. When he stepped on the starter button there was a hiss, a whistle and then a cloud of smoke rolled up from beneath the hood and floor boards. The driver lost no time in rolling out of the car and it required considerable persuasion to induce him to get back on the seat and persuade him that nothing was mechanically wrong.

Beckemeyer, Ill., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Two sisters, Mildred and Leona Gross, 13 and 15 years old respectively, were fatally burned early today when fire swept through the seven-room dwelling in which they lived.

The youngest girl was dead when firemen found her in her bedroom. Leona died in a hospital in Breese, Ill., several hours later.

Beckemeyer, Ill., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Mildred Gross, 13, was burned to death early today and her sister, Leona, 15, is not expected to live as a result of burns received when the seven-room frame residence here in which they lived was destroyed by fire.

Edward Gross City Marshal, and father of the children was also seriously burned about the face, hands and legs, but is expected to recover.

Mrs. Gross and two smaller children escaped injury.

The fire was discovered about 5 A. M. when Leona awoke to find her bedroom in flames. She shouted to her sister Mildred who was asleep in the same room to get up and then ran out of the room. As she started downstairs, however, she became overcome by the smoke and fell.

The father who was sleeping downstairs with his wife and the two smaller children awoke when the girl fell. He dashed upstairs and carried her from the house but his efforts to save the other daughter upstairs were thwarted by the flames.

Firemen from Carlyle and Breese aided the Beckemeyer department in fighting the blaze.

The cause of the fire, which apparently broke out in an upstairs room, could not be immediately determined.

Reading of Scriptures Over an Amplified Speaking System is Held Disorderly in Zion City

Zion City, Ill., Feb. 15.—(AP)—When, if ever, can the quoting of Scriptures be classified as disorderly?

Chief of Police Earl Casperson of Zion City contended when it is done at night over an amplified speaking system.

The officer presented his view to the Rev. Finis J. Dake, pastor of the Christian Community church of this city who, aided by members of his church, is conducting a Bible reading marathon.

"What! The word of our Lord disorderly?" asked the young pastor.

Casperson suggested that perhaps the loud speakers interfered with the sleep of nearby residents.

It was stipulated that the speakers should be permitted to operate outside the church during the day and until 10:30 at night.

The pastor stated that the Bible will be read in its entirety in four days. Reading started at 10 o'clock Tuesday night. The readings have been conducted 24 hours daily, with several persons taking turns.

PRESIDENT MAY WRITE MESSAGE ABOUT AIR MAIL

Meanwhile Government Prepares for Long Court Battle

Washington, Feb. 15.—(AP)—President Roosevelt soon may draft a special message to Congress on the air mail situation, reports in postal circles said today.

The reports, following an open charge by Postmaster General Farley that all domestic air mail contracts except one were products of conspiracy, did not disclose what the President will recommend.

Some hope is being held out that several companies charged by Farley with "collusion" might be brought back into the air mail picture by drastic self-reorganization. Otherwise, they would be barred from bidding for five years.

Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.), a former Assistant Postmaster General, moved to this end. He pleaded:

"Let us make the guilt personal. We should not visit it upon the industry."

Farley Issues Letter
While the administration prepared for a court battle over the dramatic cancellation of the air companies' contracts, Farley issued an open letter last night. It asserted flatly that chiefs of 14 aviation companies met in the big gray stone Post Office Department here in 1930 and that 13 came out with lucrative holdings.

Competitive bidding was abandoned, Farley charged, and other companies were excluded from the bidding. He declared also that a system of extending contracts, maintained under the Hoover administration, was "illegal."

Both the Justice and Post Office Departments cooperated today in preparing to fight an order in New York courts, designed to restrain the government from cancelling all contracts and having the Army fly the mail. A first step will be a fight on jurisdiction, an attempt to

MITTENS FOUND BESIDE EDGE OF WATER THIS MORN

Evidence Ice Had Been Broken Recently Also Reported

Rockford, Ill., Feb. 15.—(AP)—The discovery of a pair of mittens beside a pool in a gravel pit and evidence that the ice in the pool had been freshly broken today led searchers for 8-year-old Charles Backus, missing eight days, to start dragging the pool with grappling irons.

Meanwhile, police who have been questioning the boy's father, Charles Backus, Sr., declared he had made a number of changes in his original story that the boy had run away or been kidnapped.

Denies Wife's Charges
Backus, accused by his wife and two stepdaughters of spiriting away the boy after slapping him into insensibility denied the accusation and hinted at kidnapping.

Long questioning of the father, however, failed to change his statement, that the boy left the house alone and never returned, after being reprimanded by his mother for not changing his clothes after school.

The version given by the mother and two stepdaughters, was that the elder Backus hauled his son out from under the bed where he was hiding, slapped him into unconsciousness and when he did not recover, took him away in his fruit truck, returning alone 45 minutes later.

Threatened Family
County authorities said they learned when Backus returned alone, he placed a four-foot club on the table in the living room warning members of the family: "There'll be crepe on the door if you tell."

The mother and two stepdaughters deny that they knew where Backus took his son.

State's Attorney Robert E. Nash said there was sufficient evidence already accumulated to return an indictment in event the boy's body is found.

The grand jury is now in session.

Changes His Story
Backus originally told police he was asleep at the time the child and mother were quarreling. Today, police said, the father admitted he was not asleep and had listened to it.

The discovery of the mittens was made by state policemen who joined with city and county officials, Boy Scouts and citizens in a search for the boy or his body.

The pool is about a mile from the Backus home.

ONE MAN LOST FROM SCHOONER YACHT IN STORM

Coast Guard Reports Chicagoan as Swept Off Uvira's Deck

New York, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Coast Guard headquarters today received a message from the cutter Pontchartrain stating that Hubert Kuehnmeier, Chicago, was lost overboard from the schooner yacht Uvira Tuesday, the day the yacht sent out signals asking for aid.

The Pontchartrain towed the Uvira into Hampton Roads, Va., this morning.

The message gave no further identification of the man lost, and added only that a three-hour search for him was fruitless.

He was lost at 7 A. M. Tuesday. It was assumed by the Coast Guard that all the others aboard were safe.

The cutter, which picked up the yacht Tuesday night, reported that water was four feet deep in the hold of the yacht when she sent out the call for aid and that the crew was unable to reduce this amount until the sea calmed yesterday.

THE CAMERA-HUNTER

No cry of wounded bird, no empty nest,
No plumage darkening with a crimson stain,
Nor eye fast glazing with approaching death,
For we are brothers with the wind and rain.

I would not break your flight, O happy bird,
Nor hush the music of your morning song,
Nor still the call of mate to wooing mate,
For we are brothers, and the day is long.

The day is long, and filled with rare surprise,
The changing beauty of the field and sky
Lift you to song, while all around I feel Akin with things that live and move and fly.

So when the day is done and night appears,
Within my darkened room there comes to view
The pictured story of your woodland home,
And from my heart your song returns to you.

Mrs. Lambert Happily Surprised On Birthday Anniversary

Not one wife would envy the anxiety Mrs. H. W. Lambert was put to on Tuesday evening while waiting for her hubby to return with groceries for supper.

When he finally came he brought with him about 50 members and friends of her Sunday School class at Bethel church, as dinner guests, in honor of her birthday. What a surprise it was to see so many walk in at this peculiar hour when she had prepared a meal for five! All came with well filled baskets, therefore, her worries were ended.

Among the tempting delicacies were a four-layer birthday cake and a three-layer popcorn cake. The supper was served cafeteria style.

Miss Lona Beckingham took charge of the program. Mary L. Zigler favored with two songs. Mr. Murphy sang "At Calvary" and played his own accompaniment. A piano solo by Mrs. Jessie Gaul was very much enjoyed.

Harrison Wadsworth told some secrets about the Lambert family. His talk was very good and, although funny, contained much truth.

Marie Hoggard gave a reading, "Mistah Noah and de Ark" which brought smiles to all faces. Betty and Bud Cheney sang "That Silver Haired Daddy of Mine" and "Tell Mother I'll Be There."

Cleora Wadsworth surely can ask foolish questions. Have wondered what paper she could have read to the uninvited guests singled out their baskets and started their homeward journey.

Colonial Tea By St. Paul's Aid Society Was Great Success

A decided success was the Colonial Tea and entertainment given by the Ladies Aid Society of St. Paul's Lutheran church Tuesday afternoon in the church parlors, guests to the number of more than eighty were in attendance to enjoy the occasion. A review of Revolutionary History given by Miss Eleanor Powell was the first number on the program. Miss Powell touched the high lights of history bringing her subject to what never forgotten winter of 1777 when General George Washington established his winter quarters at Valley Forge. Over and over the story has been told of those cold months of starvation and sickness and suffering which Washington's soldiers endured in loyalty to him.

The terrible break-down of the commissary system, the bundling of Legislature, the appeal to Congress by Washington for support and aid for his loyal army. In closing Miss Powell said she wanted to present a later picture of Washington and a peaceful, happy home enjoyed by the Father of our country and his dear wife.

The curtains were then drawn from across the platform. General and Mrs. Washington were seated there in the quiet of their home. A ladies quartette (unseen), sang beautifully, "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia." Another song, "Old Black Joe" was sung later. Old "Jerusha" the faithful servant ministering to the needs of her beloved "Massa and Missus"—Two tiny tots dressed as fairies, with gold on their wing danced to Elfin music. Two little Colonial maids told the story of the cherry tree and sang songs. Jerusha told in poetry the story of the restoration of the flag.

In the closing number the ladies quartette appeared, the dainty colors of their Colonial costumes with their white hair made a very charming picture. "America, the Beautiful" was the song sung and "My Country 'Tis of Thee" in response to an encore. Mrs. Washington then invited the guests to have a cup of tea.

Refreshments were served from a beautifully appointed table. Mrs. L. W. Walter assisted "Martha" in pouring, the Colonial ladies passing tea and cookies.

During the social hour following Miss Jewel Auman and Miss Donna Bursled gave two violin numbers. "Night" from Lieberstraum, and "The Bells of St. Mary's" by Adams. Mrs. Earl Auman accompanied with the piano. These numbers were beautifully given and greatly enjoyed.

The quartette was composed of the following ladies: Mesdames Earl Auman, James Boyer, Howard Edwards and George Smith.

The following ladies took part: General and Mrs. George Washington—Mrs. Lottie Brooks; Mrs. Robert Fulton.

Jerusha—Mrs. Roy Raffenberg. Fairies—Barbara Moore and Betty Rhoades.

Little Colonial Maids—Donna and Alberta Hankeken. Accompanists—Miss Jane Bradford and Mrs. Austin George.

The guests in departing expressed their enjoyment of a delightfully happy afternoon.

Mrs. Austin George, Mrs. John Bohnstiel and Mrs. J. E. White were the committee in charge.

Junior Play Is "Peg o' My Heart"

By BRADLEY MOLL

Experimentation is the essence of science, and in the case of the Junior Play, to be presented this coming Friday and Saturday nights, it is the transformation of the usual set to one of quite realistic appearances. In the experimental field, this time it is the lighting effects that produce the realism, and after having seen the rehearsals, I am convinced that the play from every angle is worth anyone's time, or money, and I can say, frankly, that if you go to see "Peg O' My Heart," either the night of the 16th or the 17th, you will enjoy it immensely, you will see some real acting, and some real directing. In the rehearsal I was impressed with the fact that the characters were in reality living their roles, and that they were determined to make their play a big success, in spite of the fact that they have been limited to only four weeks practice. To tell you more about the play would destroy the atmosphere the principal characters have created, to me it was amazing that the play had all that simple delicacy, which characterized the original play, and that I myself imagined that I was sitting in some theater watching the play being shown on its premier showing. The reason for this statement is that I believe that this play really deserves to be seen, and if you witness this play, and do not enjoy it, it is not the fault of the cast or the director, if you know anything at all about acting, you will see plenty of it in this play.

In addition to having a "new deal" in the lighting effects, which give moonlight, or sunlight, and even lighting, the cast of the play will be made up under the supervision of the make-up squad of the Dramatic Club, consisting of the following members: Catherine Buchner, Virginia Van Bibber, Betty Nichols, Harriet Hardy, Betty Lazier and Frances Miller. These girls are all learning the art of creating different persons, or characters for the different character parts to be played, this field in itself is fascinating, and the girls meet regularly with their instructor, Miss Guernsey, and study different types of original creations, that all will be used at some time in the work in making up characters for the class play.

In concluding the discussion of the play it would be hard to say anything that would be a lure for anyone to come to the play. If you don't like plays, "Peg O' My Heart" will please you more than you can imagine. If you are a crank on plays, stay home; if you enjoy a good play, with fine acting, you will part with your money quite readily, and you will leave the auditorium (the play will be given at the South Side auditorium) with the knowledge that you really enjoyed the play so much that you will even take some memory of it home with you.

Favor More State Aid for Schools: And Copeland Bill

Legislation pending both at Washington and at Springfield is of immediate concern to the Illinois League of Women Voters. At the special session of the Illinois Legislature on February 12th an effort was made to find funds for the schools and one method suggested is by an increase in the state distributive fund. Mrs. Laura Hughes Lund of Chicago, Chairman of the League's Department of Education says: "There must be more state aid, from new sources of revenue, for the schools."

Also the League understands that bills will be put in at this session calling for consolidation of governmental units, as an economy and efficiency measure. According to Mrs. Guy A. Tawney of Urbana, chairman of the Department of Efficiency in Government, the league awaits with great interest the development of these bills as it has voted to work for the elimination of unnecessary governmental bodies and units.

At Washington the League of Women Voters is giving its support to Senate Bill 2000, popularly known as the Copeland Bill. This Bill extends the authority of the Food and Drug Administration to protect the buying public by preventing the adulteration and misbranding of cosmetics as well as foods and drugs, by establishing standards for foods and by preventing false and misleading advertising of foods, drugs and cosmetics. The League will of course oppose any amendments which defeat the purpose of the bill.

The 1906 Food and Drug Act as amended prohibited the manufacture and sale of adulterated, misbranded, poisonous, or deleterious foods and drugs. Invaluable as the Act has been in the protection of the buying public, experience has revealed the need for extending the Act (1) to include cosmetics under the adulteration and misbranding provisions, (2) to prohibit the false or misleading advertising of foods, drugs and cosmetics, (3) to permit the establishment of the Department of Agriculture standards for foods, and (4) to considerably strengthen the administrative provisions so that the Department of Agriculture through its Food and Drug Administration will be in better position to give prompt protection to the public in preventing the sale of dangerous foods, drugs and cosmetics.

In addition to the protection to the public health afforded by a new measure covering the points outlined, such a measure would also give a very real protection to the consumers' pocket-book since no purchase is more costly than a product deficient in quantity or quality or one which is actually harmful.

U. S. AIR EXPENDITURES SHOULD BE GUARDED.

It sometimes seems as if Uncle Sam couldn't touch airplanes without getting his fingers burned.

During the war the old gentleman put a perfectly fabulous sum into construction of airplanes, and announced blandly that the sky of France presently would be darkened by the wings of innumerable American birdmen.

The American birdmen did their stuff all right, but not in American planes. About all the country got to show for the expenditure was a headache and a feeling of dazed bewilderment.

The story isn't quite the same today, but once more it looks very much as if some slick city feller had sold Uncle Sam a part interest in the Brooklyn bridge, or something.

We're reading about cagy gentlemen who ran investments of a few hundred dollars into many millions, aided by fat government contracts; about certain companies which enjoyed profits of 30 and 40 per cent on their sales to the government; about a weird tangle of subsidies and exclusive contracts which seem to have kept at least a favored few from knowing anything at all about the recent depression.

It goes without saying, of course, that all this queer business needs to be investigated up to the hilt. But even more important than finding out who sold our uncle a gold brick is the job of discovering some way in which he can be sure of getting value received when he spends his money on airplanes.

For there is more to all this than just the possibility of a big scandal to be aired. Directly or indirectly, the money the government spends on aviation is money spent to advance the national defense.

If and when we go to war, our air fleet will be vitally important to us; its size and efficiency will may spell the difference between victory and defeat.

The country has been exceedingly liberal in providing for its aerial defense, and the country is entitled to get what it has bargained for.

The man who gyps the government on an airplane contract is not simply a swindler. He is undermining the national defense in a vital spot.

That is why all this talk about funny business in connection with airplanes must have a complete airing.

LEGALIZING SPEAKEASIES.

One of the odd angles of prohibition repeal came to light the other day in Michigan, when it was announced that state licenses to sell liquor by the glass would be given to a number of persons who had operated "blind pigs" in the prohibition era.

These licenses, it was said, would go to men who run "clean, orderly places" before repeal and who had not been involved in rackets.

In one way, this is fair enough. In another, it is strangely illogical.

There were speakeasies and speakeasies in the old days, of course. Some were fearful dives, and some tried to be more or less respectable.

But all of them were units in a great illegal network, and even the best of them had at least a small share in supporting those monster underworld rings that mocked at the law.

Trying to figure out now which ones are "deserving cases" is surely about as perplexing and contradictory an assignment as any public official could tackle.

A TEST FOR DIRIGIBLES.

If the Navy Department assertion that it is prepared to co-operate with private industry in establishing a commercial, trans-oceanic dirigible line bears fruit, the lighter-than-air craft soon will get a new test of its usefulness and its practicality.

There was a time, not many years ago, when early establishment of regular service by dirigibles between the United States and Europe seemed certain. Then the Akron crashed, and the dream dissolved.

Those giant craft that had looked so safe and powerful took on a fragile and dangerous appearance.

Just as the early hopes were too optimistic, so did the reaction go too far. The dirigible isn't as fool-proof as we thought a few years ago; but it isn't as dangerous as the Akron disaster led some of us to think, either.

Establishment of a service such as the navy suggests would give us a chance to see just how American-made dirigibles would act on regular schedules—and, for that reason, might be an experiment worth making.

THURSDAY, FEB. 15

(Read Matthew VII: 7-11)

"Ask and Ye Shall Receive"

The God of Jesus is a God of law.

The sovereignty of law is universal, extending over the realm of matter and also over the realm of souls.

The unchangeableness of law is supported by some to put an end to prayer; but it only places it on a sure foundation. We know now there is no whim or caprice. When God built the universe He left it in a place for request and reply. In the modern home conversation still goes on as of old. Jesus speaks with all the positiveness and assurance of a scientist. "Ask and he shall receive."

No matter who you are you cannot ask without receiving. The principle of gravitation is operative everywhere and always and so is the law of prayer. "Seek and ye shall find." There are no ifs and butts. There is no perhaps. The cos-mos is built on the idea that every seeker is sure to find. "Knock and it shall be opened unto you." There are no doors which refuse to swing

open to those who come with an earnest soul knock.

Prayer:

O Thou ruler of the universe, we rejoice in the assurance that Thou art a God of law and that we can depend on Thee today and tomorrow and forevermore. Deliver us from our fears and doubts, and help us to give ourselves up to Thee completely, now and always. Amen.

"And, where is your hive?" wee that you are nice girls and boys.

Just follow on this path that I

They reached the hive and Buzz then cried, "I'll pour the honey right inside." Then Doty said,

"Your hive is shaped just like a big acorn."

Real shortly to a flower they went, and quite a little time was spent in getting honey from it.

Then back to the hive they ran.

Soon Nick said, "Well, it seems to me you've seen all that there is to see around this place. We'll find another new sight, if we can."

They roamed round through the big woods a while and then Nick shouted with a smile, "Why, I see my friend Spiny Spider sitting over there.

"She'll interest you all, I know.

Let's just go up and say hello.

She is working at her spinning wheel. A web is in the air."

Then Spiny spied them and cried out, "Well, what is this gathering all about? Who are your little playmates, Nick? I have never seen them before."

"Oh! Nick replied, "They are Tinythe sights. They want to watch you spin a while. Go on, and spin some more."

sultant group, consisting of the entire personnel of both organizations has been practicing for three weeks, and has practically completed its preparations. The program will be featured by both vocal and instrumental solos, duets and quartettes. Under the direction of Wilder Richardson, a fine blackface quartette has prepared several interesting numbers. Mrs.
Harlo Olson has consented to give a reading, a field in which she has pleased many audiences. Mrs. Walter Ott and Walter Archer have prepared a short humorous sketch which they will present. Within a few more days the program will be completed and you may rest assured that it will be most enjoyable.

The Compton high school basketball team will meet Ashton on the local floor Thursday, February 15, in what promises to be a very exciting game. Compton having defeated them by the close score of 14-10 in a former game. On Tuesday, Feb. 20th, the team will journey to Maita to meet them for the first time this season.

A miscellaneous shower will be given Saturday evening, Feb. 17, in the Compton opera house for the benefit of Mr. and Mrs. Jud Beemer. Everyone is invited to attend. A picnic dinner will be enjoyed, the general picnic rules being observed.

Funeral services for George Lewis Ogilvie were held at Brooklyn Lutheran church Monday afternoon with Rev. L. J. Grosshans conducting the services. Mrs.
Gladys Sauer sang two selections.
Pal bearers were Clement Buchanan, Paul Kessler, Floyd Archer, Wendel Murely, Cleus Chaon, Wayne Archer. Interment was in the Restland cemetery Mendota.

George Lewis Ogilvie, was the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford L. Ogilvie. He was born in Compton, January 12, 1922 and passed away Saturday, Feb. 10, 1933 at the age of 12 years and 29 days. He attended the Compton grade schools and was a member of a Sunday school class of the Brooklyn Lutheran church. Death came following an illness of several months which he bore very patiently. He leaves to mourn his loss his mother and father, a sister Virginia, a brother, Norman, and two grandmothers, Mrs. Blasberg of Tonia, Ill. and Mrs. Ogilvie of Middleton, Ill., and a host of friends.

Contest Closes

Collections of the various groups who were engaged have been judged and the prizes and ribbons awarded. Three judges were used in picking each set of winners and the collections were judged on size and effort in collecting and on attractiveness and originality of displaying. Size without attraction did not necessarily win, nor did attraction win over a much larger collection. Many remarkable collections have been gathered together this winter and last fall and most of them are highly interesting. Every contestant, as well as some who failed to get their collections in, has been asked to bring his or her display back for the Hobby Show which is scheduled for early in March. The public will be invited to attend and in the opinion of many, will be well repaid for doing so.

It is hoped that several collections of various kinds may be exhibited by older collectors. The contest in the Hobby Show will, of course, be only for the school children of Compton and community.
In the high school group, Allen McClintock won first with a large and well displayed collection of nails, and Virginia Jacobs was second with a very attractive show of dress prints. Honorable mention is given to Mabel Janssen and Mildred Eggers with food labels and buttons, respectively. Other collectors were: Alta Cook, buttons;
Vivian Florscheutz, postmarks; Anita Schmidt, food labels and Cleora Otterbach, autographs.

Among the grade school boys the competition was exceptionally

Mail Pilots, 'Up in the Air,' Await Parley Action

Vitally affected by the government order canceling all airmail contracts, members of the Air Line Pilots' Association are shown here as they met in Chicago with their president, David L. Behacke, coastless, to decide their future course. Many of the pilots are expected to fly the army planes which will take over the service, but definite action awaits a conference by Behacke with government officials.

WEEKLY SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JESUS' POWER TO HELP

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D.

In this lesson Jesus appears in two distinctive phases of his personality and influence. We see him in the presence of the sick and needy, ministering comfort and along, with this comfort, bringing healing of body and soul; and we see him also in the alluring power of his personality drawing men to Him and into the inner circle of devotion and discipleship.

No man, however, no matter how fine his character or how beautiful his deeds, is free from the criticism of those whose religion moves in the realm of form and prejudice.

In proportion as the religion of men is loveless, they are bitter against those who dare to speak of religion in terms of reality and love. Jesus, in healing the man sick of the palsy, assured the unfortunate man of good cheer, because his sins were forgiven.</

LAYTON ALMOST RUINED IN MAT GAME, HE SAYS

Redhead Decided Then He'd Better Stick to Billiards

New York, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Ver-satility—that's Johnny Layton, all over. The Sedalia, Mo., read-head, who is gunning for his eleventh world's three-cushion billiard title, makes billiards his means of livelihood now. But it has not always been thus. Since he was born in the Kerry Patch section of St. Louis 47 years ago, he's been a carpenter, fighter, wrestler, actor, baseball player, manager of night clubs and a guide in the north woods.

Between jobs he found time to originate the diamond system that has revolutionized three-cushion billiards.

It was his last match as a wrestler, 28 years ago, that almost ended his billiard career.

"I had taken my troupe of wrestlers to the little Illinois mining town of Starnon for matches against the home town boys," said Layton. "I weighed only 122 pounds but I was billed to meet Tommy Maxwell, who later became quite well known in the Midwest, in the feature bout. Maxwell weighed more than 150 pounds but that made little difference in those days."

Almost Ruined Him

"Everything might have gone off fine if we hadn't forgotten our mat."

We had to haul in shavings from the saw mill and over that we spread a canvas. That mat and Maxwell's head locks just about ruined me. It took eight stitches to close a cut over my right eye and it was a year before wounds on my head were healed."

To this day he bears the scars. His right eye threatens to show down his game and he has spent thousands of dollars to cure it from twitching and hurting when he uses it under the bright lights.

Layton got only $275 for the Maxwell bout and he spent $225 for it for railroad fare from St. Louis.

"I learned my lesson right there," Layton said. "I decided I would stick to billiards even if I never made a penny."

Layton kept in running for the title yesterday by defeating Tiff Denton of Kansas City, 50 to 18.

"I believe I can still play as good billiards as ever," said Layton. "All I ask is a close match and you'll see the old redhead in there with all of his old time skill."

Favorite Beaten

It was not Layton's victory that furnished the surprise yesterday, however. It was Otto Reisel's victory over Willie Hoppe, the favorite. By 50 to 44, Reisel dropped Hoppe out of the undefeated class and gave J. N. Bozeman, Jr., of Vallejo, Calif., sole possession of first place with five straight victories.

Hoppe's defeat left the former balk line king tied for second place with the defending champion, Welker Cochran, and Layton, each of whom have won four of their five matches.

Bozeman was to meet Denton in the feature match of today's matinee program while Cochran was scheduled to match strokes with Kenney Matsuyama at night. The other day game brings together Augie Kleckhefer, Chicago, and Reisel, while at night Artur Thurnblad, Chicago, meets Alfredo de Oro, 71-year-old Cuban from New York.

Football Will Be Wide-Open Game This Year

Coach Shaughnessy is of Opinion Seven-Man Line's Gone

Chicago, Feb. 15.—(AP)—The day of the seven-man defensive line is over, Clark Shaughnessy of the University of Chicago has concluded after studying the recent changes in the collegiate football rules.

"The rule which permits one player to hold the ball for another to kick it, opens up all sorts of possibilities," Shaughnessy said, "and it means the day of the seven-man line is gone. No team on defense can operate any more without a man in the safety position, because there will always be that threat of a kick."

"I can see where the new kicking formation can be used readily enough as a fake, and from it passes can be thrown. So, too, it will be possible to run from that formation and the defense will not have much time to make up its mind what kind of a play is coming."

"It looks to me," he concluded, "as though this kicking rule, with the changes in the forward pass rules will throw the game wide open."

Beier Loafers vs Millway Hatchery.
Ashton vs Dixon Battery Shop.

To open the third round of the Commercial basketball league last evening the fans saw an upset accomplished and another surprise victory almost scored when the Battery Shop and Ashton crews won from the I. N. U. and Beiers Loafers, respectively. Ashton pulled out the tying points in the final second and went two overtime periods to win by a baseball score of 7 to 6. The upset occurred when the D. B. S. whipped the league-leading I. N. U. Co. 17 to 16. The losers continue to lead the season's race of three rounds by one game over the Battery Shop.

Loafers Took Lead

Despite the loss of Hasselberg and Underwood, the Beiers Loafers surprised Ashton by jumping into a 3-0 lead at the quarter and being in front 6 to 1 at the half. It remained 6-1 at the third period and the Loafers continued to lead 6-4 with 15 seconds remaining. Here Oburn netted a one hand shot to force the first overtime. Neither team could count in the first three minutes but Oburn made a free toss in the second extra session for the peculiar final count after—46 minutes of play. Grove and Oburn had a basket and a free throw for three points each to lead the scorers.

In the main attraction of the evening's entertainment the score remained very close throughout. The Dixon Battery five were ahead 4-2 at the first period. Before the half's rest to I. N. U. went in front for an 8-7 lead. In the second half each team resorted to missing free tosses making only two out of 13 attempts. The Shop crew pulled ahead 5-14 at the end of the third period. In the closing ten minutes each team scored a basket for the final total of 17-16. The scoring was led by Hilliker with five baskets and a free toss for 11 points. Joyce was next with five scores.

The regular Wednesday night played later on the Libertyville alleys.

EXEMPTIONS TO REMAIN ON ALL PRESENT BONDS

Treasury Dept. Fears A Change Would Ruin Financing Plans

Washington, Feb. 15.—(AP)—The Roosevelt administration turns thumbs down today on any immediate attempt in Congress to levy taxes on securities now exempt from taxation.

Such a move might jeopardize the Treasury's financing program, it was felt.

Word to this effect was circulated at the Capitol direct from the Treasury as the House returned to more debate on the $258,000,000 general revenue bill.

Despite criticism that prolonged talk was mere "shadow boxing," since passage was almost guaranteed by yesterday's 241 to 154 vote barring all but committee amendments, leaders stuck to plans to debate until next week before voting.

Treasury Opposed
Secretary Morgenthau was stated to have advised Chairman Doughton (D. N. C.) of the Ways and Means committee that even consideration of any of the proposed constitutional amendments to make Federal, state, and municipal securities subject to taxation might endanger financing plans.

Roosevelt is known to hold similar ideas, particularly in view of the $5,200,000 still to be borrowed before July to carry on the recovery program.

Leaders indicated the administration desired to let investors in government securities know that no such action is favored.

As a result, Doughton has presented a resolution to the House asking for the transfer from the Judiciary committee of resolutions calling for a constitutional amendment on tax exempt securities.

Indications are that if they are surrendered to the Ways and Means committee they will be buried.

ORGANIZE FOR TAG DAY HERE NEXT SATURDAY

Solicitation Will be Made for Salvation Army Fund

Next Saturday under the sponsorship of the Dixon American Legion Post, with a permit given by Mayor Dixon, a city wide tag effect will be made for the annual appeal of the Salvation Army.

About sixty local girls will do the tagging and they will give everybody in both the residence and business sections of the entire city the chance to buy and wear a tag and thus help this good cause next Saturday.

Any amount dropped in the tag boxes will bring a tag to the contributor. While the smallest coin of the realm, a penny, will buy a tag, it is hoped that many here will give a dollar or even more for their tags and so help Dixon go over the top on the quota assigned to raise here.

Simultaneous with this tag effort in Dixon next Saturday, all points in Lee and Ogle counties will also tag for this cause.

LITTLE AMERICA AVIATION and EXPLORATION CLUB

LITTLE AMERICA ANTARCTICA With Byrd at the South Pole
by C. A. Ables President
U.S.N.R.

Lost and Found!

ON BOARD THE BYRD FLAGSHIP, JACOB RUPPERT, ANTARCTICA, Jan. 29 (via Mackay Radio)—Well, here I am folks. Back again on the good old Jake. Filthy dirty and no chance to get clean. Dog tired, every joint I possess aching madly. But gosh! What muscles I am developing!

I've been told by the club secretary, by radio, that I've been lost. I didn't know it. But I've had the amazing experience of spending three nights—or rather the tiny parts of night I could spare for sleep, with the sun shining all night—in a tent with a snow floor.

And only the exhaustion of 20 hours a day of the most terrific physical labor could make me sleep on that cracking snow and ice floor. I'll never see a crack in a concrete sidewalk again without John O'Brien wanting to run Second Mate away from it.

The Ruppert Down here you'll see a tiny crack you could hardly put a knife-blade into. A few minutes later it is three feet wide and you're sprinting away from it as fast as you can go. In half an hour a piece of territory as big as ten football fields, with a horrible grinding sound, has slid into the ocean, which is 1600 feet deep around these parts and darn cold. Nice stuff to sleep on, eh?

My job won't sound impressive to you. Checking gas and oil. Prosaic enough, I imagine, doing that in some warehouse or freight station. Put on the edge of a slippery, crumbling cliff or snow and ice which is likely to disappear any minute and take you with it, well, prosaic is not quite the word, believe me.

All day yesterday and practically all night we worked with furious energy on the ice to take advantage of good weather. The ship had been able, with the aid of our wonderful motor boat cruiser, to snuggle up to the treacherous and unsteady ice cliffs after drifting about the bay for three days to save her from being sunk in a smother of falling ice cakes as big as houses.

On the end of the big boom the landing net was spilling radio equipment and great red drums of gasoline and oil out onto the ice. And George Noville, C. P. Lindley, of Warren, R. I., several other fellows and myself were working frantically loading them onto the dog sleds and tractor sledges for the mad dash away from the edge of the ice to Pressure Camp, four miles back, where the ice hasn't started to crack up yet.

Admiral Byrd, on a tour of inspection, had located several cracks behind us but we were too busy to worry. He worried, though, as he always does about his men when there is danger around. He considers the breaking up of the bay ice a terribly serious problem. But we toiled on undisturbed.

Pretty soon, from the bridge, we heard the Admiral yell through a megaphone to Lindley, "Hey, Lindley, you're too close to the edge to work without a life line. Put one on immediately." This was Lindley's lucky day. The rest of us had life lines on, groups of us tied together on long ropes. Lindley did as the Admiral told him and attached himself to Noville and me. Darn good thing he did!

We were loading up another sledge for another wild run to Pressure Camp when suddenly we heard the four ominous blasts on that deep whistle on the Ruppert. It scared the wits out of us. This was the signal to cast loose ship and dash aboard. In other words, it meant both we and the ship were in deadly danger and the ship was going away from there immediately. Before we could move a muscle the ice started breaking up all around us and underneath us, with that awful grinding sound. The sharp eyes of Admiral Byrd and Commander Gjersten had spotted its beginning from the ship. Tremendous cracks appeared like magic on all sides of us. One opened up directly under Lindley and he went head over heels into it, out of sight and almost took George and me with him. With all our strength we hauled him out, like a huge fish and in the excitement Noville gave him a good kick, for no good reason at all.

On the piece of ice that was falling next to the ship were several packing boxes of precious supplies and ten big drums of priceless gasoline. These simply had to be rescued. The big boom swung out quickly over the side and almost buried us with the landing net. Working like mad we rolled the drums and boxes hurriedly into the net and it was jerked into the air and onto the broad steel deck of the Ruppert. Thank the Lord that's not cracking up! On all sides men were scurrying about on the ice—some to dig out the buried steel hatch covers to which our mooring lines are attached and casting them off others rushing to the makeshift gang plank to the ship, made of telephone poles and more hatch covers. Up that gangplank we scampered madly and the men on board got busy hauling it in. Will you believe it, five minutes after that whistle went off, the ship was moving out to open water, just as the whole area where we had been working hundreds of yards of it, tumbled into the ocean. On boy, some excitement! But we're getting used to these sudden moves. Nothing happens slowly down here. Wonder if I shall ever be able to accustom myself to a peaceful life at home again. I certainly will for the first six months because I'll sleep that long the minute I reach there.

You should see us. Our nice white working suits are filthy black. So are we and the beards we are growing are comical to see. We haven't had a real bath since we left New Zealand and the Ruppert, being an oil burner, has deposited on all of us a nice layer of sticky, oily soot which no amount of cold cream seems to budge. If I ever get into a nice white tiled bathroom, with plenty of hot water and towels and scrubbing brushes, I'll kiss its walls and eat the soap.

The club tells me that all the cards and working maps which members get without cost have been sent to date but that some of them have been returned because names and addresses were not clearly enough written by applicants. Write them about this if your card and map haven't arrived and they'll send them. If you haven't applied yet for membership, which costs nothing, do so now, with your friends. Simply send us a self-addressed stamped envelope and your membership card will be sent you immediately, with the map being mailed the following day. Address your envelope to Arthur Ables, Jr., Little America Aviation and Exploration Club, Hotel Lexington, 48th Street and Lexington Avenue, New York, N. Y.

LAW EXECUTED FOUR DOGS FOR BITING A CHILD

Official Death Sentence Was Carried Out by Veterinarian

Cortland, N. Y., Feb. 15.—(AP)—A poisoned needle, wielded by the law, executed four mongrel dogs today or a pack attack which crippled Joyce Hammond, six-year-old school girl.

Appeals from animal-lovers all over the country failed to save the dogs. They were taken from cells shortly after midnight to an animal hospital, where County Veterinarian E. V. Moore carried out the death sentences imposed by Justice of the Peace A. P. McGraw.

Dr. Moore plunged a poisoned needle into each dog. Then an anesthetic was administered. The dogs, which only a moment before had been yelping for joy at being released from the cells, fell into a sleep and died quickly. Curley succumbed first, then Pal, Jack and Sport.

Method Approved
Dr. Moore declared his method of execution was approved by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals as the "most humane."

Little Joyce, who may never recover the use of an arm the dogs mangled, slept at her home a few blocks from the hospital while the dogs were being killed. Unaware of the impending execution, she had spent a busy day yesterday looking over hundreds of valentines, chewing gum and enjoying a "sunshine basket" of toys sent her.

Former Catcher of Cubs Dead in West
San Francisco, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Old friends of Howard E. "Rowdy" Elliott, former Pacific Coast League and Chicago Cubs baseball catcher, gathered to save him from a pauper's grave here today.

Elliott's body, which had lain unclaimed in the morgue since his death from a fall Monday, was moved to a mortuary and steps were taken to collect a fund for his burial. Efforts to locate relatives at Bloomington, Ill., where he once lived, have been unsuccessful, they said.

Naming Australia
The continent of Australia was first given the name of New Holland by the Dutch in 1655. The great Australian explorer, Matthew Flinders, first suggested the name Australia, which means southern land, in 1814, and the term first appeared in official usage in the imperial act of 1829 "to provide for the government of his majesty's settlements in western Australia."

Western Australia is therefore the first Australian state to have the name officially applied to it. The whole continent was not known officially as Australia until it became a federation on January 1, 1901.

Made Mate a Nut Sunde, Wife Says

Billed as "the most beautiful girl in Chicago," actress Mary Sunde, above, seemed all of that to Gerhard Sunde, according to a separate maintenance suit filed by Mrs. Anne Sunde. She charges that Mary stole away the affections of Gerhard, who became only a nut Sunde in her presence. The Sundes, despite the same name, are not related—and won't be, if Mrs. Anne has her way.

SALMON FISHERMEN OFF EARLY FOR BIG CATCH

Fish to Bring Three Times Price of a Year Ago
Seattle, Wash., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Northwest salmon fishermen are braving death in storm-swept seas because the price is three times greater than last year.

The larger boats have left for the fishing banks. Hundreds of others will leave Puget Sound and Alaska as the season of the silver horde gets underway and will be on the job by mid-march. The price this season is 14 to 18 cents a pound last year 4 to 8 cents.

The boats must dodge sudden squalls and sometimes ride out northern gales that turn the blue waters of the North Pacific gray-green. Sometimes they dash for an Alaskan port with a storm sending terrific combers crashing over their superstructures, salting men and salmon with briny sputum.

Around fishermen's wharf here, the little fellows, with tiny sails and diminutive auxiliary motors, are rigging for the expedition. Last will go the cannery tenders.

At the wharf, there are the rattle of chains and hawsers, the creaking of blocks and the "link-clink" of the fishermen's mallets as many of them beat their own troll-line spoons. "No shalley-chimney," test an errand wate douse the galley-fire and result in a cold supper.

CWA GETS MONEY AND STARTS TO REDUCE FORCES

Congress Votes Funds for Payroll: Order Forces Trimmed

Washington, Feb. 15.—(AP)—The Civil Works Administration juggled millions in its jeans today to assure immediate pay envelopes to 3,800,000 persons—but for some 200,000 it will be the last visit to the federal cashier.

Even as Congress stopped arguing to drop $450,000,000 into the empty CWA till Administrator Harry L. Hopkins told government agencies to reduce their civil works forces from 50 to 90 per cent. At the same time he ordered cessation of federal civil works not on federal or other public property.

With practically all of its first $400,000,000 fund exhausted last Saturday, the CWA appeared about to halt stock-still or at least go payroll-less.

Continued Cuts
But even with this problem answered, Hopkins served notice that plans for reducing the force were still in effect.

He intends to cut the total of employees by about 10 per cent a week, until the army will have practically vanished by May 1. Once at a peak of 4,000,000 men, it already is 200,000 below that figure.

Under Hopkins' latest instructions, further demobilization begins tonight, but the exact number to be dismissed at once has not been determined. The orders, civil works officials estimate, effect the employment of 263,682 individuals.

Power of Telescopes
It is estimated the 100-inch telescope on Mt. Wilson has increased the power of the human eye 10,000 times, while the 200-inch telescope has added to man's vision about 300,000 eyes.

Pilots Will Wake up Baby McKinley

Los Angeles, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Until longer days roll around again on the Arizona wastelands, obliging air pilots will play "alarm clock" so that Baby McKinley gets his breakfast promptly.

Pilots pondered the purpose of a strange order on the Grand Central air terminal bulletin board telling them to flash their landing lights each morning as they pass Round Top mountain in Arizona.

Inquiry developed that Mrs. McKinley, who lives with her husband and five-month old baby in the remote spot, had made the request. She wrote that the family alarm clock was broken and asked that the pilots "punch-in" until an earlier sun gets on the job again as the awakeners.

Many Different Languages
"Civilization speaks so many different languages," said Hi Ho, the sage of Chinatown, "that progress is delayed by the preliminary effort to ascertain precisely what we are all talking about."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks pink, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely. But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resist a substitute. 25c at drug stores. ©1931 C. M. Co.

ASHTON SENIOR PLAY DELIGHT TO BIG CROWDS

Students Presented A Fine Performance

By Mrs. E. Tilton
Ashton—A Washington Tea is being planned by the M. E. Ladies Aid for Washington's birthday anniversary. The event will be in the nature of an antique display and everyone of the community having antiques which they wish to exhibit is cordially invited to display them.

The Hucking Peg P. T. A. met Monday evening. The school has been closed the past several days while repairs were made to the heating plant. Elmer Guio of Rochelle teaches at Hucking Peg.

L. V. Slothower, Smith-Hughes instructor in the Ashton high school, accompanied a group of students to Pearl City, where they competed against nineteen other high schools in a contest.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hann of Franklin Grove were guests at the home of Mrs. Hann's parents on Sunday evening.

Mrs. George Stephan will be the hostess to the Ladies Aid of the Presbyterian church Wednesday, February 21. She will be assisted by Mrs. A. M. Moore.

Mrs. George Charters and her daughter, Miss Mary, were Chicago visitors on Monday.

Mrs. N. C. Calhoun will be hostess to a group of friends on Wednesday at a quilting party.

Mrs. Elizabeth Tyler is a guest of friends at Rockford.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dean of LaMoille were guests at the Ralph Dean home at a dinner honoring three members of the family who have had birthdays in the past week. Those whose birthdays were celebrated, were Ralph Dean and son Robert, and Mrs. Clarence Dean.

Miss Winnifred Mall was guest of honor at a shower given at the Fred Kurth home Saturday afternoon. After an interesting time devoted to 500 and Bunco, the presents were unwrapped, revealing many beautiful and useful gifts for the bride-to-be. A delicious luncheon was served by Mrs. Kurth and her sister, Mrs. Nelta Hann, aunts of the guest of honor.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Howard were hosts to the Misses Helen and Elma Mall and their brother Joe, at a dinner Sunday.

The M. E. Ladies Aid will meet Thursday, Feb. 15, with Mrs. Richard Sunday.

The senior class play, given on Friday and Saturday evenings was an outstanding success. Each part was well taken by the students. A large audience attended both evenings. The high school orchestra, under the direction of Herman O'May, also added to the evening's success. The net sum of $115 was netted by the class, who are deeply grateful to the public for their whole-hearted support.

Herman Sanders, local merchant, will attend the convention of Maytag salesmen at Moline late in the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Dean and daughter Dorothy, motored to Champaign Sunday afternoon where Robert Dean returned to his college studies. Enroute they stopped at Springfield, where Mr. Dean attended a banquet given by state Republicans, honoring Lincoln.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ackland of Steward and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Shippee and son Edgar were guests at dinner at the Herman Sanders home on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Fence of Elgin were guests at the home of Supervisor and Mrs. Perley Cross on Sunday.

Due to the illness of Mrs. Charles Green the farewell party to have been tendered them on Saturday evening, was postponed.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Tilton and daughter, Miss Ila, and Neil Quake of Richmond were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Clower on Sunday.

Miss Vera Cain, who teaches at Antioch, spent Monday visiting schools and the pupils enjoyed the holiday.

Stuart Wilson Tilton accompanied the Rochelle high school boys to Pearl City where Northern Illinois high schools competed in seed judging.

Miss Lola Quick of Dixon was an Ashton caller on Tuesday.

Mrs. Will Hart has been ill the past week.

The small amount of precipitation of this section of the country this winter, is responsible for the failure of many wells about the vicinity. Many report empty cisterns and farm wells which have not been drilled are at low ebb.

More than 327 Ogle county farmers are reported as having complied with government regulation for corn loans. An average of 1,000 bushels to the farm has been made with some 327,000 bushels now sealed by government sealers.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Moore of Morrison were guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Krug and Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Moore over the week end.

Ashton Women's club will be addressed by Miss Violet Thorpe of Dixon at a program under the direction of the American Home department of Friday, February 16.

Mrs. Claire Musselman is quite ill at her home.

Mrs. Marlon Tilton, sister of Mrs.

Lawrence Cross, is now a patient at the home of her mother, Mrs. Little of Flagg Center.

Mrs. Janey Yelton will hold a closing out sale on Thursday.

Mrs. Rita Biggers was hostess to the Pine Rock Woman's club at her home on Friday. The music committee had charge of the program. Miss Dorothy Canfield sang two groups of songs, and a music memory contest was an enjoyable feature. During the business session a donation was voted to the Salvation Army funds.

Mrs. H. O. Canfield will be hostess to the Pine Rock club on February 23 in the absence of Mrs. Effa Kasper, scheduled hostess for the meeting.

CODE FOR YOUTH

Beware of all orators with quivering voices. Put no grey obstacle in the way of their words which would prevent the free flow of chatter from one ear to the other.

Don't be talked into believing that education will convert any plowboy into a Lincoln. Education helps, but Lincoln was Lincoln for other reasons; perhaps mainly because he obeyed that old-fashioned rule: "Love Thy Neighbor as Thyself."

Be progressive. If you follow directly in the footsteps of your fathers, there will be no human progress. Yet, never condemn the old until you are sure the new is better.

In these days, read every newspaper you find from front page to back. You are living current history; be able to talk it intelligently. Upon your shoulders will rest the burden of assimilating the new social methods of our day.

Don't be a bigot. Make your conclusions only after you have listened intently to both sides.

Recognize a difference between argument and discussion. The difference is that no conversion was ever made through an argument. Speak only facts when you discuss, and don't allow personal prejudices to discolor your statements.

Put into life at least as much as you take out.

Be true to your conscience. Every normal person knows the difference between right and wrong. Mold your own code of morals, but do it with a thought for the rights of others.

Be eager to listen to advice, but train yourself to distinguish between good advice and bad.

Don't be hopelessly discouraged with conditions as they are. Prepare yourself for the time when the opportunity to improve them will be yours.

Remember that we are all riding along on the same boat. Some of the passengers ride first class, while you, perhaps, must stay on a lower deck. But if you bore holes in the bottom of the boat, you will perish along with all the others.

ILL. LAWMAKERS AGITATED OVER THEIR MILEAGE

One Senator Has Refused to Take More Than Legal Amount

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Privately agitating members of the legislature was the question of how much mileage they should be paid for coming to Springfield each week.

There was talk of passing a new law to change the system.

The law provides that legislators shall be paid the actual, first-class railroad fare from their homes to the Capital each week they attend a session.

No change in the schedule of payments was immediately made when the western railroads a few months ago reduced their fares from three to two cents a mile.

Issue Forced

The issue was forced, however, by one unidentified Senator who insisted that he was not entitled to payment at the old rate.

The Auditor's office thereupon notified all legislators that mileage would be paid at the lower figure.

This meant that Chicagoans would get $7.45 for each round trip, considerably less than the $13.36 they had been receiving. Reductions for downstate would be on the same basis.

There was grumbling and a dele-

Ill. Probers of Army Deals

Harry Woodring, assistant secretary of war, is shown telling the House Military Affairs Committee of army business deals now being investigated by a District of Columbia grand jury. Woodring told of huge (but as he believed, justified) profits made by aviation supply builders. Contracts for sale of surplus army material were also under survey.

gation of thirty stormed the Auditor's office in protest, although the cut-rate checks had not been issued.

Third-Class Fare
Then it was found that the $7.45 figure was for what the railroads call a third-class ticket. The first-class rate is $11.20, with parlor car privileges. That wasn't so bad.

There was talk of revising the law, however, to bring it up to date and provide for law-makers who drive their automobiles to Springfield.

It is customary for several to come in one auto, all collecting railroad mileage under the law. From many downstate districts, railroad connections are round-about, increasing the mileage over what it would be if highway distances were used.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Jesus saith unto him, Thomas because thou hast seen me, thou hast believed; blessed are they that have not seen and yet have believed.—St. John, 20:29.

All I have seen teaches me to trust the Creator for all I have not seen.—Emerson.

Migrations in Sea

In the sea there are also migrations, according to an authority. The whales of the cold Antarctic travel from area to area, their movements apparently being governed by their breeding habits and by the available supply of plankton on which they feed. Eels, too, breeding in the mid-Atlantic, are known to cross the ocean, going west to the American coast and east to the rivers and bays of Europe.

IN BEES FERTILIZATION IS THE DECIDING FACTOR IN WHETHER AN EGG PRODUCES A MALE OR A FEMALE, AND FOOD DETERMINES WHETHER THE EGG PRODUCES A QUEEN OR A STERILE WORKER.

BEES are in three forms, as regards sex. The drones are males, produced from unfertilized eggs. The workers are females, produced from fertilized eggs, and are usually sterile. The queens are females also produced from fertilized eggs and are quartered in separate cells where they are given special food. A worker can be transformed into a queen if given this food.

JURY ACQUITTED ARMY OFFICER OF ATTACK CHARGES

Lieut. Jno. Murrell Will Return to His Duties in 9th. Infantry

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 15—(AP)—Lieut. John H. Murrell, cleared of a criminal attack on Miss Blanche Ralls, red-haired Alabama divorcee, said today he is going back to the Army with a "clear conscience."

"I knew I would be acquitted," the Ninth Infantry officer said. "I suppose it was because my conscience was clear. The trial has not embittered me. I still have the same confidence I always have had in the womanhood of America and I am going back to the Army to perform my duties in the same spirit as before. I want to thank all of those who have stood by me through the trial and since the charges were filed."

Only Witness
Miss Ralls, who is 28, was the only government witness. She testified she met Murrell the evening of Oct. 21 and went with him and others to a night club near San Antonio. During the evening, she said, she had about three cocktails.

About 4 A. M. the next day, she testified, she got into a car with Murrell to go home. Instead, she charged, he took her to the Army post and attacked her.

Lieut. Murrell testified that when Miss Ralls got into his car and he started home with her, he could not learn where she lived because she was intoxicated. He said he decided to take her to his mother's house at the Army post.

He said he stopped because Miss Ralls was sick. When she recovered, he said, she was able to tell him where she was staying and he took her home. He denied any attack.

St. Louis Cardinals "farms" have come to the financial aid of the parent club, reversing the usual procedure.

"Our big minor league teams certainly helped the family along last year," President Sam Breadon of the Cardinals said today. "The Cardinals did most of the providing a few years ago, but the family has grown, and some of the children not only are big enough to take care of themselves, but to help out the father of them all."

When the Cardinals in 1933 played to fewer than 300,000 cash customers at home, Rochester of the International League, Columbus of the American Association and Houston of the Texas League had successful seasons.

Rochester and Columbus not only enjoyed big "gates," but produced players who brought fancy prices in the baseball market.

Married Flirts

REIGN HERE TODAY
GYPSY MORELL and TOM WEAVER are married on the same day as LILA HOVAILING and DEREK BLISS, but while Lila lives in luxury Gypsy has to struggle to keep expenses within Tom's income.

Alice Gibson's son is born her days become a dreary round of caring for him and caring for the home. Tom is frequently away from home evenings and Gypsy suspects he is interested in VERA GRAY, who works in the same office.

Lila confesses to Gypsy that she intended to divorce Derek and marry MARK BROUGHTON, richer and older.

Gypsy's father is seriously injured in a motor accident, but recovers. Gypsy is so relieved she resolves to forget her jealousy of Vera. However Vera continues to pursue Tom, though he does not encourage her.

Lila divorces Derek.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXXVII
TOM didn't understand the change that had come over Gypsy but he was grateful for the new peace and gaiety in the house. Although Vera's name was never mentioned, her presence in the city—in the office, in fact—appeared no longer to trouble young Mrs. Weaver. Tom had heard of letting sleeping dogs lie and believed in the axiom. Vera was still pretty anxious to know why she and "Tommy dear" couldn't be better friends.

But there were no two ways about it, he couldn't ever bring Vera and Gypsy together. They didn't like each other and never would. Vera was a good business woman. There were plenty of things he would have liked to discuss with her outside the office. Her mind was keen. She had a fine shrewdness. And so it was that he fell again and again into small traps of her making. He would be lunching at the sandwich bar and she would appear beside him with a plate of cold cuts and a salad. Tom would listen, talk, smile while the lovely woman at his side, her gilt hair just showing under the demure small hat, would murmur, encourage, applaud.

"You handled Whitman exactly right, Tommy."

"Think so?" Even a clever man likes flattery. Tom Weaver was not stupid and he enjoyed appreciation.

"Do I think so? I know it, you blessed idiot." Vera's flashing smile belied the words.

"Bert's having the gang at his place Monday night. I wish you could get up there. The Manners people are coming. They'd be useful." Vera would flash with a speculative look.

Tom would flush, stammer, get out of it. Of course, Vera understood. Of course, he was busy. It was quite all right.

"Darn it all," Tom would mutter to himself later. "I'd better run out on that girl. This will come to no good."

Later, at home, he would talk to Gypsy about the Whitman matter. "I got that soap opera I told you about," he would say with becoming modesty at dinner.

"Oh, really, dear? Now where did I put that carving knife? Or where did Elsa put it? She's getting so careless." Gypsy would put down the platter with the steak, sit down while everything's hot, darling. What was it you were saying about something?"

TOM might sigh a little. It wasn't that Gypsy lacked interest. She had plenty of it but she was just wrapped up in other affairs. She might notice he looked a bit downcast.

"Tell me more about it, darling," she might urge. "You know I'm thrilled to hear."

And Tom might go on but the first rosy glow of his enthusiasm would be dimmed. He would harbor the suspicion that Gypsy was more concerned about the sauce for the cauliflower than anything else.

Hunt Gibson had fallen into the habit of "dropping around" in the evening. These were the first warm nights of summer and in the city the spell was evident. Gypsy, in thin, many-times-washed organdies from last season, would sit sewing under the amber lamp.

"Come in," she would say welcomingly, "I thought you'd be out at the Lido Club tonight. Ronny said you were all going."

Tom would go out into the kitchen to stir up a cool drink and Hunt would explain lightly that he had changed his plans at the last minute; something had come up.

Occasionally he brought Sue with him—Sue, looking unusually pretty and extremely wraith-like these days. But often that he did not come alone.

One night after Tom had closed the door after their guest he came back into the living room and stood, thoughtful and silent, for a moment. His quiet, listening attitude gave Gypsy pause.

"What's up, darling?" He stared down at her. "I've just come on something. That chap's in love with you."

She burst into a peal of laughter. "Where did you get that idea?" He didn't smile. "Happens to be true."

Gypsy was annoyed. "Tommy, you never talk that way. It's—it's not a bit nice of you really. We don't go in for this sort of thing, do we?"

"Sorry, darling. Forget it. May be I'm just imagining things."

THEY dropped the subject then and there but neither of them forgot it entirely. Gypsy had always said she despised young married women who carried on flirtations—either openly or behind their husbands' backs. It all seemed pretty cheap, somehow. But she found the thought of Hunt's liking her wasn't entirely unpleasing. Why, when she had been jealous of Tom, angry at him because he had been seeing Vera Gray, she had even entertained the thought of irritating him with an admirer of her own. Of course that was as far as she had gone—merely thinking of it. All wives, she reminded herself, do that at moments; the spirit of retaliation is neither a noble nor a beautiful one and she was ashamed now of her sentiments.

Just the same, it gave her a small, secret satisfaction to think that Hunt admired her.

Sue telephoned her one day and asked her to come to tea at the Vanderbilt, their old meeting place. "I'd love to," Gypsy said. "How does it happen you're on the loose today?"

But Sue was vague. She would explain, she said, when they met. It was warm, clear and bright. Gypsy wore her new printed silk, black with a scattering of field flowers, and her wide shallow-crowned hat. She felt cool, well dressed and happy, a delightful combination. Her steps fairly danced along the crowded pavements and when she came into the deep, high-ceiled hotel lobby with its furniture already gay in summer slip covers it was with an almost overpowering sense of well being.

Sue, in this dim light, was pale and she flushed. What was Sue driving at and why did she look at her so accusingly?

BEAUTIFUL MISNOMERS

HERE is an open-air hat factory in Tabacunda which turns out some of the most beautiful and yet the most mis-named hat that ever reached our markets. They are handsome, finely woven, light-as-a-feather chapeaux called "Panamas." Yet they have a little connection with Panama as dinner jackets have with Tuxedo. The hats are made in Ecuador and were christened "Panama" back in the days when the shipments were all made through the Isthmus.

Another erroneous belief in connection with Panamas is that the finest of them are woven under water. This idea probably originated from the fact that the weavers keep their finger tips moistened while braiding the straw in order to render it pliable and keep it from splitting. An even moisture and the dim light of dusk-for sunlight has a tendency to dry out the strands of fiber and make them brittle—are essential to the creation of the best grade of hat. This means that the weavers must be up and about their work before daybreak. Watching these skillful hat-makers in operation, and bargaining for their beautiful creations is one of the pastimes of travelers visiting Ecuador on the fortnightly 21-day cruises from New York.

In making a Montecristi the weavers begin by uniting about sixty strands of fiber, increasing the number as the crown broadens out and the sides are developed, until at the edge of the brim they total sometimes more than a thousand fibers. The mesh is so extremely fine in the best quality of hat that it is like a fine cloth fabric and can be rolled up and slipped through a finger ring.

cut off the flow of the gas and the fumes were so strong he suffered a severe headache Tuesday felt too ill to be on duty at the office of the city clerk. Miss Vivian Holmes, a roomer was also quite ill and all the occupants of the house were more or less affected.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Goranson of Rockford spent Sunday with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Reed. Mrs. Reed accompanied them back to Rockford.

WHAT'S THE ANSWER?
(By Dr. Joseph Fort Newton.)

In the Boston Library, ever so many years ago, there was a tiny book of "Essays and Poems," by Jones Very, edited by Emerson; a golden little volume which did a lot for me at a time when it was needed.

Jones Very was "the hermit thrush of our literature," as Emerson called him, and all his song was a variation on one note. Not only his song, but his life was lived in the same key unaltered, by the testimony of all who knew the quality of his spirit, he attained to real saintliness.

"Too look at him, to know him," said a fellow-townsmen in Salem, where he lived, "was to see genius. He moved to and fro in Salem like Dante among the ancient Florentines—a man who had seen God." High praise, truly, and it was those words that led me to read the little book.

When Very met people in the street his talk was not about the weather, but about God. "Brother, have you made the final sacrifice?" he would ask. By which he meant to ask if his brother had given himself wholly and in everything to the will of God—a rather embarrassing query.

To Very it was not a pious sentiment; it was just plain sense. It was the question of a wise man who had found the secret of life, and was too happy to keep it. No wonder the gentle poet, speaking with such insight and sincerity, seemed like an ancient saint in old Salem.

Once he went to each minister of the town, in his study, and put to each one his quiet, persistent question, so simple withal and searching. So annoyed were the clergy that they thought to have him tried for his sanity; but maybe he was the only sane man in town after all.

If he should enter my study—so I asked myself, as I read—look at me with his deep eyes, which held so much kindness, and put the question to me, what would my answer have to be? Or would I be angry, as if resenting an intrusion, and send away one who meant to help me?

No matter what words we use. A man will not be happy in life, much less find the meaning of it, unless he gives himself up utterly to the biggest and best thing he knows; and that was what the poet had found out.

FRUITS AND FRUIT JUICES

Eating fruits is apparently a pleasure. This is interestingly revealed in our language. We speak, for example, of enjoying the fruits of our labor.

A good deal of the pleasure in eating fruit comes from the fact that it contains sugar in a highly palatable and quickly usable form. Most fruits also contain weak organic acids which are stimulating to the organs of taste.

In addition to these things, fruits constitute a highly desirable article of diet.

Fruits are rich in a variety of mineral substances, although these minerals make up only from one-half to three-fourths of 1 per cent of the weight of the fruit.

Fruits are also rich in vitamins. For the healthy gastro-intestinal tract fruits offer an appreciable amount of bulk or roughage. For that reason it is desirable that fruit should be eaten pulp and juice together.

Those that are susceptible to diarrhea, and sick patients who cannot stand roughage may still gather the advantages of fruits by taking only the juices. Fruit juices contain sugar in a form which more immediately provides energizing material for the muscles, than is to be found in any other food.

Fruit juices are particularly well tolerated by the feverish patient. The juices make the taking of water so desirable for the average patient suffering from fever both easy and palatable. Fruit juices also appear to promote the elimination of fluid through the kidneys, and to check excessive sweating.

In speaking of fruits and fruit juices, one is impelled to give special praise and credit to the tomato, which may be a transition between a fruit and a vegetable.

Tomatoes and oranges deserve a special place in the dietary, and the tomato especially because of its abundance of vitamins.
